1. A secret meeting of the Central Committee of the Partido Socialista Popular (PSP, Cuban Communist Party) was held on 23 June 1952 at the home of Dr. Domingo Villamil, in Habana, Cuba. The discussion was concerned with the possibility that, in view of the firm and antagonistic attitude of the Batista government toward Communist and Soviet activities in Cuba, the top leaders of the Party might eventually find it advisable to leave the country.
2. It was agreed that all necessary preparations for such an eventuality should be made. It was further decided that, should this necessity arise, some of the top local leaders should go to Mexico and others to Guatemala. At the present time the Central Committee is considering the choice of substitutes for any of those leaders who may leave Cuba.
